Dear readers, colleagues!

Here is the first issue of our journal for 2018.

It is published with a slight delay due to some technical problems on the Internet.

However, we managed to solve the difficulties and in this issue you will see a historical review on the establishment of our specialty, a lecture and three large scientific reviews. The main part of the issue includes 10 original scientific articles (including two in English) and 8 case reports. We try to keep our promise and do not delay articles in the editorial board more than 2-4 months. However, before submitting an article to the journal, please look at the recommendations for the authors and the structure of the articles already published. I request this due to double blind peer-review of the articles. If the review is positive, the article is sent to the journal quickly. But if the work needs changes, especially if it is built not on the requirements of the journal, we have to send it to the authors for revision, and then conduct a new review.

I am sure that it is in our common interest to prepare an article as close as possible to the requirements of the journal – this will allow us to publish quickly all your articles.

I am sure that this year we will keep the quality of scientific articles on the highest level!

As usual, at the end of May, we hold a National Congress of Radiology. Our journal takes an active part in the preparation of the Congress and we will present you our achievements at a special stand. This year the Congress is held in accordance with the order of the Ministry of health №141 from March 30th.

See you at the Congress!
