Dear readers of the electronic journal of radiology!

I present to you the first issue of 2014. It is now the fourth year of our scientific, electronic, peer-reviewed journal! I hope that we will continue the best traditions that have developed in the journal also in this year issues – recording "master classes", which are read by leading doctors and scientists. This form of educational material presentation found itself as important and it has wide popularity.

Besides original articles and case reports, in the issue are presented several large scientific reviews. The publication of these materials helps practitioners to focus in the boundless sea of often conflicting publications devoted to one or another topic.

I really want our Journal to be maximally popular among medical specialists. But this is impossible without a straightforward exchange of views about the quality of the materials, ease of use of electronic issues and the journal website. Write to us. We welcome your letters and suggestions!
